DEATH OF OLD-TIMER

(Delburne Express)

We have another death record this week, that of Mr. Noah Goyne, who is one of the oldest of the old-timers around this district. He was ninety-two years of age at the time of his death, and it came as a surprise to all his friends, for although he had exhibited the signs of old age, he was enjoying good health up to within a few weeks of his death. He passed away on Sunday, October 25th, at Cloverdale, B.C., aged 78 years.

Until October of last year Mr. and Mrs. Goyne had been residing on their farm two miles north of Delburne up to the age of 18 years, having left North Dakota, where they were born, to come to this land. Deciding on account of the ill health of Mrs. Goyne, to leave for a warmer climate, they left in October for Cloverdale, B.C., where a son, Fred, is living. Mrs. Goyne lasted only a few weeks after arriving there, now to be followed by her husband. They are both buried at New Westminster, a short distance from Cloverdale.

Mrs. Chas. Austin received word from her brother the illness, and left for B.C. right away, reaching her father before he passed away. The sympathy of the community, and especially that of the older inhabitants who knew him so well, is extended to those left behind.

THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPER OF TODAY

The weekly newspaper of today upholds the high traditions of a free press.

High paper costs, high wages make the smaller paper the powerful arm of newspaperdom. Your local editor may be the most useful member of the community. His medium performs real service worthy of best support. Years ago newspapers slamed each other over politics. Rival editors attacked each other. Newspapers most of all the world are now united in their purpose to give the public a great change in the newspaper business.

All the world is getting down to business. Waste is being eliminated, wages are going up, country is being developed. Shortage of newspaper is being met by a great change in the newspaper business.

A LITTLE NONSENSE NOW AND THEN

The Ant Who Hires His Home—The Tenant.

The Opposite of "Tight Money"—Loose change.

Up to Date—Fond mother: "Whom does the baby look like?" Visitor: "He is neutral."

Never Forgiven—Gentleman: "What do you think of my new gloves?" Mabel: "They're immense!"

The Reason—"Why are you asking me for help?" Haven't you any close relatives? "Yes. That's the reason why I'm appealing to you."

The Value of Silence—Magistrate: "You are charged with assault and battery. What have you to say?" Prisoner: "Not a word, yer worship! It was sayin' too much got me into this scrape."

Unprofitable Speculation—"Colonel, sir, I am wedded to his art." "Well, there is at least one point in his favour." "What is that?" "No one would accuse him of having married for money."

A New Line—"Take dancing lessons? Well, I think not. There are too many other ways by which I can make a fool of myself." His wife: "Yes, dear, but you have tried all of those!"

Easily Done—"Accepted author: 'Sir, I admit being a poor man, but I am determined to marry your daughter, in spite of her wealth.' Her father: 'Oh, well, if that's the case, I'll just remove the obstacle.'"

The Bugle Call—"Colonel, inspecting barracks: 'Supposing the barracks were to catch fire, what would you do?' Bugler: 'Sound me bugle, sir.' Colonel: 'And what call would you give?' Bugler: 'To bugle, sir.'"

Very Much at Sea—"On her first ocean voyage an old lady asked the captain, 'What's that davy there?' That's the steering, adap," he replied. "Really?" she exclaimed in surprise. "And does it take all those people to make the boat go straight?"

Difficulties Ahead—"A few months bring strange changes. There's old Grange, for instance, who married his typist." "Norrie!" "Well, you saw any very extraordinary change in that?" "Myrtle!" "But it was he who used to dictate to her, you know!"

A Sporting Offer—"I want to help you," said a benevolent man who had been accosted by a tramp, but if I give you assistance I am afraid you will not be a good use." "Well," replied the tramp, "experience isn't enough to make a man with or much good either, so take a chance, go on!"

Degeneration of Species—"Thompson: 'Who are those three men standing by the conservatory there?' Johnson: 'Why, they represent three generations!' The ruddy old man with the fine head of hair is Grandpa; the middle-aged man is his son, and the fellow with the bald head is his grandson!"

The Vagaries of Wealth—"Girls are so strange!" said a fortune teller, "I will transfer all her savings from the Post Office to the War Loan. Now she is going to make a fortune, and wants to buy her War Loan. But the worst is, she wants to spend the money in buying a second-hand German piano."

And Such a Difference—"A school teacher had considerable difficulty in instructing her class how to distinguish between 'Miss' and 'Mrs.' After making a very full explanation, she said to one lad, 'Robert, now what is the difference between 'Miss' and 'Mrs.'?' Whereupon Robert, one of the slowest children in the class, started her with the answer, 'Mister!'

The Bargain-Seeker—"In the canteen of a certain military depot, cracked eggs were sold at a reduced price. An Irish soldier, marketing for his mess, selected the cracked eggs and said, 'Gimme two dozen best cracked eggs.' 'Cracked eggs all out, Pat,' replied the sergeant in the corner. 'Well, crack us some, will ye?' he said.

The Strategist—"Archie and Frank were playing a war game when their uncle said to Archie, 'If you take the fortress with in a quarter of an hour I'll give you sixpence.' Archie, a few minutes later: 'I've taken it! Give me the sixpence!' Uncle, producing the sixpence: 'How did you manage it so quickly?' Archie: 'I gave Frank threepence, and he surrendered.'"

War Economy—"Harold," said a young wife, "have been to take him for a trial flight all the summer for my new winter costume." "Yes," said Harold, "I know." "Well," she said, "I've decided that I won't have it. It is made of pale-green broadcloth, and it will cost six guineas. I want you to get me a little 'How much do you need?' inquired the husband wearily. "I've got all but five pounds left!"

Long-Suffering—"A stage carpenter went to the theatre manager one day and asked for an increase in wages. The manager appeared surprised. "Why," he exclaimed, "I really don't see any way to giving you a rise! You're doing nothing much for me. Half the time you are merely standing in the wings listening to the play." "Yes, sir," replied the carpenter grimly, "that's just it."

Experimenting—"A wealthy man in search of novelty arranged with an aviator at a flying-ground to take him for a trial flight. When the machine rose in the air it seemed very unsteady. It wobbled terribly, and once or twice nearly 'side-slipped.' "Easy there!" roared the passenger. "Remember this is my first trip." His feelings may be imagined when the aviator yelled back at him, "Well, it's only my second!"

Now Old Man You're Caught!

You can't squirm away or dodge the issue any longer. You've either got to drop off—or drop in.

With winter almost here, suitable sheds for your idle machinery are absolutely necessary—or there'll be a big shrinkage in their value next season if left out in the open all winter. Why delay longer? Surely the damage to your machines will more than offset the cost of enough lumber to build sheds. So why not have the sheds? We have plenty of good shed lumber, and at the little prices we're asking for it, it is cheaper to own sheds than to be without them. Now it's up to you. Come in and talk about it.

RED DEER SOUTH-WEST ENTRANCE

For twenty years those in authority have been trying to get a good entrance into the city from the south-west.

This has always been the worst road leading into the municipality, and has caused the Council no small amount of worry.

The city fathers took the matter up in earnest last year, and have succeeded in securing one of the best grades, as well as a permanent road for all time to serve the people of the south and west country; and we feel confident it will bring considerable extra trade to the city.

We believe the Council have had the best interests of all citizens at heart in their action.

Now, after the Council have come to an amicable agreement with the C.P.R. officials to change the crossing and to pay half the cost of the bridge; have persuaded the Government to do a great deal of grading free of cost; and have secured a deed of the roadway; have the concrete piers of the new bridge built, and have worked over the new road until it is an established fact, it is a little late in the day for the Board of Trade to come forward and protest against the much needed improvement.

We believe the Council, and especially Mayor W. E. Lord, should be commended for this splendid piece of work, and we feel assured that that is the voice of a large majority of the citizens of Red Deer.

SINN FEIN WEARS OUT ITS WELCOME IN UNITED STATES

New York Tribune Offers Scathing
Comment on Recent Flag Outrages

New York, November 13.—The New York Tribune publishes this morning numerous letters from United States citizens couched in terms of protest against the recent indignities accorded the British flag by Irish Nationalists in this city during Armistice week celebrations. Under the caption, "A Local Sinn Fein Outrage," the Tribune supports the angry protests of its readers in the following editorial:

"The act of these Sinn Feiners was an indefensible outrage alike upon every decency of national sentiment and upon every obligation of courtesy due to a friendly power. 'We do not think Englishmen will at all mistake the source of this act. The American friendship for England was never so broadly based and clear-eyed as today. If we are aware of English mistakes and shortcomings—compare to our own mistakes and shortcomings—we are equally aware of the underlying common sense of justice and right and democratic faith which the English speaking nations of the world all share. Such an insult to the flag of Great Britain could not come from any true American. 'When the Sinn Fein burned an Armistice day flag, it was as one of our readers notes, typical of Sinn Fein in the great war. On this day, when Americans assembled to commemorate an occasion hallowed by the sacrifice of American soldiers in a common cause, with Great Britain and France, with all democracy against all autocracy, all that these Sinn Fein minds could think of was the war. Many Irishmen, south as well as north, suffered from no such petty egotism, and united their all in the great fight. But not Sinn Fein. That trampled flag on Broadway is a wholesome reminder of an historic selfishness that can never be forgotten.

A PHOTOGRAPHER'S LAMENT.

We dearly love to advertise
And try to "put the people wise"
To all that's daily taking place
On Bell street, where they "eat the race."

But we've been buried to the eyes
With photographs of every race,
Of every sort and style of face,
That Heaven gave the human race
(And some that came from where they wear

Abolition hairpins in their hair)
And didn't have the time to write—
So here's just "Hello" and then "Good Night."

For now a blonde and blue-eyed lass
Is posed before the looking glass,
While Grandmother, sassy and snobbish,
With brown-eyed Mary, tall and slim,
Await their turn "to have a look"

And sit to have "their picture took."
A laughing baby, fair and plump,
Keeps everybody on the jump,
Until at last by happy chance,
We dodge the sisters and the aunts
And see a smile too sweet to last
And catch the sunshine light and fast;

A country boy; a social star;
A leading member of the bar;
A blacksmith from the shops, you know;

A hotel dancer from the show—
"Doctor, Lawyer, Merchant, Chief,
Rich Man, Poor Man, Beggar Man,
Tall!"

In quick succession come and go,
Like "movie" actors in a show,
Until all nerves are smashed to slush,
All on account of the Christmas Rush.

A LITTLE NONSENSE NOW AND THEN

A Partnership Concern—

An old village greengrocer was summoned for not having a sign on his cart. The chairman of the market committee asked him if he had anything to say for himself, and he replied that he had a difficult question to ask which he could not answer himself. "The question is this," he said. "The wheels of my cart belong to Old John, the miller, and the body of the cart belongs to the vicar, and the horse belongs to me. Now, gentlemen, if you can tell me what name I can put on it I will have it done immediately."

A Study in Language—

Miss K.: "Mrs. Bingley, the famous scientist, is to read a paper before our club this afternoon on Transcendentalism. Tell me something about it; what does it mean?" Miss M.: "What is 'Transcendentalism'?" Miss K.: "Transcendentalism." Miss M.: "Say it again, please! What is the last part of it?" Miss K.: "Transcendentalism—dentalism." Miss M.: triumphantly: "Dentalism! It has something to do with teeth!"

To Be Drawn—

A Scottish youth noted for his shrewdness was once sent by his father to a neighbouring public house with the following order: "Please send to our house ten dozen of ale." It so happened that one of the publicans' faults was a propensity to inquisitiveness, and when he had read the order he could not help ejaculating: "Quid graciosus, laddie, and whatever is yer father's name?" The youth was puzzled, knowing that his father would not like him to tell the truth. Then an idea occurred to him, and he replied, "I'm no vera sure, but I think he's name's a man a lifebelt, and he'll need the cork."

If one thing was more detestable to old Turtle than another it was to get inside a restaurant that he did not know.

Circumstances, however, forced him into one such retreat.

"Waiter, the menu!" he inquired pompously of the faded-looking mortal in attendance.

"There ain't none, sir; but I can tell you what's on."

"Turtle was a bit of a student, and he surveyed this new specimen attentively."

"You must have a wonderful memory, my man."

"Oh, no, sir! I just looks at the tablecloth!"

An Inspiration—

A man and a woman, staying in the same hotel, met in one of the narrow corridors. With a polite bow he stepped to the right, to let her pass. She stepped to the left, and was again in his way. Gallantly he sprang to the opposite wall, but again she blocked his path. Angriely he seized her in his muscular arms and hurled her past him. Recovering her balance, she moved towards him with purpose in her eyes. "I beg pardon for my seeming rudeness," he hastened to apologise, "but there seemed to be no other way." "Don't mention it!" she replied, smiling brightly. "Perhaps it is discourteous for a gentleman to lay violent hands upon a lady who is a perfect stranger to him, but I can easily overlook that, for, you see, sir, we have unconsciously invented a new dance!"

Her Best Behaviour—

"I often give my pupils half of a story, and ask them to finish it in their own way," said a school-teacher in relating some of her experiences. "One day I told them about a little girl named Gertrude, who started out one morning with the resolve that she was going to be as good all day long as if it were a Sunday. Her Sunday school teacher had told her that little girls should behave like that every day. So Gertrude put on her Sunday dress, so when Gertrude put on her school dress she resolved that she was going to be very good all day. She had not gone very far when she saw another little girl standing there, crying. That is where I left the story for the children to finish. They were to relate what Gertrude did. This is the way the most serious boy in school completed the plot—Gertrude saw the little girl crying, so went up to her and asked her what was the matter. 'I had two pennies,' said the little girl, 'and a big-boy took one of them away from me. Oh, how I hate him!'"

"What did you do?" asked Gertrude. "What did you do?" "Oh, I cried, 'Help! Help! Just like that,'" said the little girl. "Why, is that the loudest you can call?" asked Gertrude. "Yes," replied the little girl. "I have had cold all day, and I call any louder than that." So Gertrude took the other penny away from her.

Remarkable Recovery—

A private alleged that he had almost totally lost his sense of hearing, and the testimony of his comrades served to support his statements. The surgeon of the depot admitted him to hospital and put him on a spoon diet. He purposely passed his bed during his daily visits for nine days without noticing him. On the tenth day he felt his pulse, and made signs to him to put out his tongue; he then asked the hospital orderly what diet he gave him. "Spoon diet, sir," replied the orderly. The doctor affected to be displeased, and said in a low tone, "Are you not ashamed of yourself? The poor fellow is almost starved to death! Let him have a beef-steak and a pint of stout!" The patient could contain himself no longer. "Bless you, sir!" he said. "You are the best gentleman I have seen for many a day!"

How to Beat the Chimney & Save Coal

1. The secret of coal saving is just enough draft and no more.
2. Keep the cross damper in the chimney as nearly closed as possible.
3. When you wish to reduce the heat, do not use the damper in the fire door; it wastes heat and coal. (Use the chimney damper).
4. A freshly made fire requires an open chimney damper, but this damper should be closed almost entirely as soon as the fire has gained headway. There is danger of the explosion of the gases, however, if the damper is closed before the flame appears over the fire.
5. Never shake a fire that is low until you have put on some fresh coal.
6. Feed regularly, whether in warm or cold weather. FILL the fire pot. A thin fire wastes the coal; disturb the fire as little as possible.
7. Avoid poking and slicing the fire bed—it causes draft holes and clinkers.
8. You can lose heat in the basement, you can lose heat throughout the whole house, you can lose heat by the windows and door, but the chief waste is by the Chimney.
9. Study how to regulate your stove and your furnace, but, with all your regulating, regulate the chimney damper.

A FACT—A quarter inch layer of soot wastes from 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. of your fuel. Some people clean their boiler flues and furnace heating surface once a year, whether they need it or not; such people may waste from 50 to 75 per cent. of their heat.

For baking, cooking, etc. and general use, there is not a coal that can take the place of Saunders Creek Coal. It costs a little more, we know, but figure out the number of heat units contained in a 100-weight of Saunders as compared with the other grades of domestic coal, and you will be surprised to find that the Saunders Creek is actually costing you less money, and, coupled with the satisfaction it gives you, you cannot afford to be without it. As for the furnace, it sells on its own merit.

DRUMHELLER LUMP COAL	$10.75
BLACK DIAMOND LUMP COAL	$9.75
DINANT LUMP COAL	$9.00

BRITAIN HONORS HER DEAD

Enormous Crowds in London Pass Before Tomb of Empire's Newest Immortal Hero.

London, November 11.—In historic Whitehall tonight, Great Britain's newly unveiled monument to "Her Glorious Dead" stood half buried beneath hundreds of flowers, tokens of the nation's sorrowing appreciation of their sacrifices.

A few hundred yards away, in Westminster Abbey, amidst the tombs of the realm's great men reposed the body of the empire's "newest immortal"—an unknown comrade of those whose deeds the cenotaph memorializes.

Every part of the empire, all classes of its citizens, from the king, to bereaved relatives of the humblest private, participated in the impressive unveiling ceremonies and the subsequent burial rites in the Abbey. During the ceremonies Whitehall and the streets adjacent were jammed with people, most of whose faces nutted told the tale of lost loved ones. The two minutes silence which fell over this whole hour course as "Big Ben" thundered the hour of eleven, seemed to vibrate with the repressed emotions. It was silence broken only by the hysterical sobs of the king, who collapsed from the intensity of his spell. On the tenth stroke of the local gong, the king pulled the shroud from the imposing monument and, with the others, stood uncovered and with bowed heads. Then, after his wreath and those of the Prince of Wales and the official overseas representatives had been reverently deposited at the base of the cenotaph, the field-marshal saluted with his lowered head, and the king, following the flag-draped coffin.

SOUND OF MUFFLED DRUMS
At the conclusion of the services in the Abbey the sound of muffled drums rumbled through the ancient edifice, buglers sounded reveille and the king and members of the royal party filed out slowly. Throughout the afternoon great lines extended from the cenotaph through the length of Whitehall across Trafalgar Square waiting to swell the accumulation of flowers about the monument.

Never before has London witnessed such vast and patient crowds. At a late hour tonight, they were still silently filing the cenotaph, many depositing wreaths, flowers, and tokens of the nation's sorrow. The Abbey was to be kept open to midnight, if necessary, for all desiring to enter. Darkness added greatly to the sombre impressiveness of the scenes and many painful incidents were to be observed within the Abbey and weeping women, overcome with emotion, having to be helped along by a friendly policeman.

Viewed from the centre of Whitehall it was a wonderful, moving scene to watch, a slow, never-ending stream, with heads bowed as they approached the cenotaph after hours patiently endured by the mourners from every class of society.

The Practical Work of a Mining School.

(1) Mining students ready to go underground in a coal mine near Sydney, (2) Students examining the great land slide at Turtle Mountain, Alberta.

Not very many years ago at least many people looked on an education at the University as unnecessary and even harmful for a young man proposing to enter business or manufacturing. The old professions of Law, Medicine and Theology were, of course, different, and demanded college training; but fitness for success in even the greatest industrial or engineering undertakings was commonly supposed to be best gained by apprenticeship in an office or works, and the boy who left school at fourteen to run errands and sweep out the office was often lauded as having outdistanced his rich neighbor who had "wasted" four or five years in learning a lot of theory, and with it acquired habits of luxury, and a sense of his own superiority to other men.

About one-fifth of the time is given to practical field geology—another fifth to visits to the mines visited, and thanks to the broad-mindedness of our Canadian Mine Managers (many of them old McGill graduates) the students thus get invaluable experience, and at the same time earn very substantial pay. The value of this very practical summer school can only be fully appreciated when the men return to college for their fourth and final year, which is devoted to a study of the advanced technology of Mining. Matters which might otherwise be difficult to understand are quickly appreciated when the interdependence of theory and practice are made clear, and the students complete their professional duties and responsibilities.

Nova Scotia and Her Arms

A movement is on foot in Nova Scotia for the restoration of the original armorial bearings of that province in place of those adopted at Confederation. Most Canadians are unaware that in 1621 King James I. of England, and VI. of Scotland, as King of Scotland, and as a Scottish measure, granted to Sir William Alexander (afterwards Earl of Stirling) the territory now forming the whole of the Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island, and parts of Quebec, of the present State of Maine, on the sole condition of paying annually one penny of Scotland money in return for the grant. The purpose of the grant being that Sir William might carry out a project he had in mind of making of this vast territory a New Scotland in America, as there was already a New England and a New France.

The story of Sir William Alexander and his efforts to carry out his great project is beside the present purpose. It all came to little enough at the time but bore fruit as we know long afterwards. Royal encouragement to the scheme given by King James was continued and amplified by his son and successor, Charles I., and among other marks of favor the last named sovereign made a grant of arms to Nova Scotia in these terms: Silver, a cross of St. Andrew blue with an inescutcheon of the Royal Arms of Scotland, Great, on a wreath a bunch of laurel and a thistle issuing from two hands, the one hand being in armor and the other naked. Supporters, on the dexter side the Royal unicorn silver, horned, maned, and hooded gold, imperially crowned, gorge

ARMS GRANTED TO THE COLONY OF NOVA SCOTIA BY KING CHARLES I

The Present Arms of Nova Scotia. with an open crown and chain affix thereto and reflexed over the back. On the sinister side a savage man proper. Motto (proper): "Munit haec et altera vincit." The shield of Scotland, blue, with a white cross of St. Andrew, was thus, it will be noticed, counter-changed to white with a blue cross of New Scotland. Later, as a separate act, the Barons of Nova Scotia were given the privilege of using this same shield, with its inescutcheon as their badge or coat of arms. An idea got abroad somehow that the shield was theirs primarily, and only "borrowed" by the province for its seal, etc., when in later times "Nova Scotia" became a reality. The shield, however, be-

It was thought that the Province had little ground for using armorial bearings which (as was supposed) belonged in right to an order of knights. The record was not looked for in the right place, namely, in the Lyon Office in Edinburgh, where it might have been found, and so the College of Heralds in London, supposing no doubt that the field was clear, proceeded to prepare arms and a new seal for Nova Scotia as a Province of the Dominion of Canada, not moved thereby by the Provincial authorities of the day, but in opposition to their wishes. The new Great Seal was received in December, 1889, but was neither welcomed nor adopted nor proclaimed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, but pigeon-holed, and left unused for years afterwards. If the Provincial authorities had been aware of the strength of the case for the old arms it is natural to suppose that they would have held out against any change, but in course of time they gave way, and allowed the matter to go by default in favor of the new order. But even then the ancient arms did not go wholly out of memory. The shield is still to be seen, not only on the old office doors in the Province building, but on old pieces of jewelry of much later date, and the full achievement appears on the Bank of Nova Scotia $10 notes, of the issue of January 2nd, 1919. In this last case the Indian sinister supporter is shown in a sitting posture and the unicorn is surmounting around the dexter side of the shield—the shield itself is of a shape characteristic of the period of marked heraldry and is wrongly marked. All these details are wrong, but the interesting fact remains that in casting about for a suitable design for its new coat of arms Nova Scotia selected the ancient rather than the modern arms of the Province. The Historical Societies of Nova Scotia now ask the rectification of the blunder committed when the ancient and last arms of Nova Scotia were supplanted by a new and commonplace design of salmon and thistles.

AN' ALL WURKIN'

The tourist had hustled through England, Wales and part of Scotland in a few days. Now he was visiting Loch Lomond with its "honny, honny banks," a guide book in one hand and a timetable in the other. A local worthy was acting as a guide, and his face fell when the visitor remarked candidly that they possessed many much finer "beauty spots" in the States. "I've got" remarked the son of Scotia coldly. "Ah, well, jeez, ye come away, tae the top o' this hill, an' abill show ye some thing ye havena' got in Anneriky."

After a laborious climb, the pair reached the summit. The guide recommended the American just to turn round slowly and view the landscape o'er. During the process he called the tourist's attention to a number of large buildings in different directions. "What, what are they?" asked the bored visitor. "Dialectical!" replied the Scot in savage triumph. "An' all wurkin'!"—Mail.

CHANGE OF FASHION INSPIRED BY ARTIST

Love of Violent Color Evolved by the Russian Ballet.

London, November 1.—Why are thin, angular women the rage at one time, and small, plump, round-faced, innocent-eyed damsels at another? Artists have always inspired women to change of appearance. The Venus of Milo and the art of Phidias and Praxiteles probably made the dressmakers and hairdressers of ancient Greece do the best they could with impossible customers. No woman of her own accord could have dreamed of looking like a Botticelli. You can trace the smooth banded hair of mid-Victorian days (a fashion resurrected since), the adoration of Raphael, just as we owe the Bunne-Jones the elongated lady with soulful, luscious eyes; to Michelangelo, the pseudo-classical ladies of every suburban dance. All these were to be seen in London society a decade or so ago. Then there were the statuesque women of Du Maurier. Every woman who could looked like one of his drawings.

Sometimes, of course, a famous woman will set a fashion, but in her turn she has generally been inspired by an artist. Of recent years Bakst and the Russian ballet have evoked the attenuated lady with the lure of strange angularity and a love of violent color. As to fashions in dress, there is nothing new under the sun.

This is being written beneath the portrait of a lady who is represented as wearing a low dress in the day time. It is not cut low enough to excite American bishops to a protest. The dress is actually slipping from the shoulders—and in broad daylight too. It is not the picture of a shameless bagpiper, but of a dignified mother seventy years ago, a Madonna in a low morning dress.

Merry Christmas

This may seem premature to News readers, yet none too soon for the Big Christmas Trade We Expect to do this Season

We would advise all persons contemplating having photographs for Christmas to make their appointments as early as possible.

Portrait Department

By the time this paper reaches most of its readers, our Christmas work will be in full swing, yet the majority of our customers leave their arrangements for their Christmas photographs until the last week or so, which means a rush for us, and does not give us the time we would like to spend on our work.

Don't worry about new clothing, as we can make old things look new in a photo by carefully arranging and posing—this especially with the kiddies.

Ladies who prefer a nice evening dress need not wait until the new one is made. We can make you one while you wait, and each design will be exclusive. There is nothing more lasting in style than draped portraiture.

When you consider money value in Christmas gifts, photographs are the cheapest. They are not only appreciated, but are a treasure to your friends.

Kodak and Commercial Department

Our Kodak Finishing Plant can be excelled by none in quality of work turned out.

Why not take advantage of this, and make up a collection of snapshots of some of the films you have taken this summer to send to your friends. They will not only treasure them as Christmas cards, but a good many of them will help to boost our district.

Our commercial work (outdoor viewing, etc.) has won a name for itself. Having a complete equipment for this branch, we are able to do the work in the most up-to-date manner at the lowest prices. Photos of buildings, stock and outdoor groups in any size desired. We have a special outfit for interior work. Samples of any of our work can always be seen at our Studio.

Enlarging and Copying Department

When you mention an enlargement of a photo to the majority of people, their memory will turn to some cheap enlargement that some travelling faker has soaked them for. It is not only an eye-sore to the purchaser, but a broken heart to the purse which has paid ten times what it was worth.

Our new method of enlarging by PROJECTION gives the customer an enlarged photograph absolutely the same as the original, in any tint or grade. This applies also to enlarging from kodak films. From good clear negatives we can make beautiful enlargements at very reasonable prices.

Samples of this work can be seen at our Studio. We will also be pleased to demonstrate this method of enlarging at any time.

Our ability in copying and enlarging is unlimited.

Art and Framing Department

In connection with our photograph business, we have added an Art Studio, which is well stocked with oil paintings, pastels, water colors, photogravures, etc.

A number of oil paintings recently received from France are on exhibition in our Studio. These paintings are by L. Voisin (brother of Rev. Father Voisin).

We carry over 5,000 feet of different kinds of picture mouldings. Having the artistic ability, we can do your picture framing in such combinations that will please you in appearance, quality and price.

We have also a large stock of ready-made frames in square and oval, in many different patterns.

Convex glass for large oval frames always in stock.

An exclusive line of Japanese hand-made (untarnishable) photo frames, in bronze and silver, has just arrived. We will be the only dealer in this line in Red Deer. They will make suitable gifts to accompany a photograph.
